What is Correlation?

- Correlation is a statistical measurement of the relationship between two variables

- There are two types of variables-

- Independent variable is a variable that can be controlled or manipulated

- Dependent variable is a variable that cannot be controlled or manipulated. Its values are predicted from the independent variable